

Department of Animal Husbandry and Veterinary Services
Distributes Poultry Birds in Rampur Panchayat, Mayabunder

The Department of Animal Husbandry and Veterinary Services (AH&VS), Andaman and Nicobar Administration, distributed 363 chicks, ducklings, and quails to 16 farmers in Rampur Panchayat, Mayabunder, on November 08, 2025. The initiative aimed to promote backyard poultry farming and enhance livelihood opportunities in the region.

The distribution included a mix of resilient poultry breeds suitable for local conditions, enabling farmers to diversify their livestock and improve nutritional security. These birds offer potential for egg and meat production, contributing to household income and food availability. Beneficiaries were advised on best practices for rearing, including vaccination, feeding, and biosecurity measures to ensure successful integration into their farms.

The program reflects the AH&VS Department's commitment to strengthening poultry farming and supporting rural economies in the Andaman and Nicobar Islands. By providing quality inputs, the department seeks to empower farmers and promote sustainable animal husbandry. The active participation of 16 farmers highlights their dedication to adopting improved practices.

This distribution aligns with the Andaman and Nicobar Administration's vision of fostering agricultural development and enhancing rural livelihoods through targeted livestock support programs.
