C) PROFILE

The Andaman and Nicobar Islands houses two distinct groups of islands, viz. Andaman and Nicobar. These two groups of islands have been divided into three districts, namely South Andaman, North & Middle Andaman and Nicobar District. The Andaman and Nicobar consist of about 836 islands, including islets and rocks in the archipelago, out of which only 31 islands are inhabited. The basic details of the three districts are as follows:

District	Headquarters	Population (2011)	Area (km ²)	Density (/km ²)
Nicobar	Car Nicobar	36,819	1,841	20
North and Middle Andaman	Mayabunder	105,539	3,227	32
South Andaman	Port Blair	237,586	3,181	80

On 1st August 1974, Nicobar district was separated from Andaman district. On 18th August 2006, Andaman district was again bifurcated into two districts: North and Middle Andaman district and South Andaman district. The UT has only one Parliamentary constituency with no assembly constituency.

The Andaman and Nicobar islands are situated in one of the most geologically fragile region of the world which sees frequent seismic activities of varying magnitudes. Besides this, other natural hazards such as cyclones and heavy rains also pose challenge to already existing challenges of geographical and data connectivity.

C-2) Demography

The total population of the Territory as per Census 2011, was accounting for only 0.03% of the total population of India. The decennial growth rate recorded during 2011 Census was 6.86%.

The population comprises mostly of people brought here during the British regime, families settled under various schemes of the government from time to time mostly from erstwhile East Pakistan, and a few families from other states and ex-servicemen settlers in Great Nicobar. Some persons have also emigrated here voluntarily, after Independence. The entire population has integrated in a cohesive manner with Hindi as the link language with little or no barriers of caste, creed or religion.

There are also six Scheduled Tribes, namely the Great Andamanes, Onges, Jarawas, Sentineles, Nicobarese and Shompens. The first four are primitive (aboriginal) tribes of Negrito stock and are found only in the Andaman group of Islands out of which the Sentinelese do not have any contact with the outside world. There is a limited contact with the Onge and Jarawa tribes. The remaining two tribes viz, Nicobarese and Shompens reside in the Nicobar District and are of Mongoloid stock. There is one settlement of Nicobarese in Little Andaman under South Andaman District too, namely, Harminder Bay. The tribal population constitutes only 8.27% of the total population

C-3) Terrain

Geologically the islands appear to have been part of the land mass of South East Asia comprising North East India, Burma, Thailand, Malaysia and Indonesia. The dreaded 10° channel which is about 145 km wide and 400 fathoms deep, separates the two groups Andaman and Nicobar. The Andaman group comprises of islands such as North Andaman, Middle Andaman, South Andaman, Baratang, Little Andaman in the Andaman group and Nicobar district comprises of Car Nicobar, Great Nicobar, Little Nicobar islands. Situated in the Bay of Bengal, Andaman and Nicobar islands constitute one of the most strategically important union territories.

The terrain in the Andaman group of islands is generally mountainous with long ranges of hills enclosing narrow valleys. The configuration of the land clearly points to these islands being the visible ridges and summits of sunken ranges of mountains; Saddle Peak in North Andaman at a height of 732 metres above sea level is the highest point in these islands. They are susceptible to heavy soil erosion. Flat lands are comparatively scarce. The villages in Betapur and Diglipur constitute the main flat lands in the Andaman group. The islands in the Nicobar group are surrounded by coral reef and shallow seas. Long narrow stretches of sandy beaches are a salient feature of the topography here. Car Nicobar and Katchal are almost flat while the others have hilly terrain. In Little Nicobar and Great Nicobar in the Nicobar group, the land surface is very irregular, cut up by steep hills and valleys.

C-4) Socio Economic and Cultural peculiarities relevant for Election Management point of view

Cultural activities: Andaman and Nicobar milieu shows a mix of the indigenous cultures of the Negroid and the Mongoloid settlers of the island, as well as a more mainstream culture brought down by the descendants of the early settlers in the island from the Indian mainland. The migrants also contributed to the culture of Andaman and Nicobar Islands. The greatest feature of Andaman and Nicobar Islands culture is the peaceful coexistence of these two strains of cultural lives.

While, the settlers in the island from the Indian mainland and the Nicobarese have enormous presence in the electoral rolls, repeated and persistent efforts resulted in bringing about 29 Andamanese 54 Onges and 114 Shompens in the electoral rolls of 26-ANIPC.

C-5) Connectivity:

Inter-island connectivity mainly depends on roads as far as North & Middle Andaman is concerned. However, this journey involves a stretch of Tribal area where the transportation is monitored by way of convoy system and therefore, is not accessible at all times of the day and this zone is categorized as buffer zone of the Prevention of Aborigines Regulation, 1956 and Rules 1957. Secondly, the North & Middle Andaman is also connected by sea. The journey to the northern most Tehsil, Diglipur would take about 12- 14 hours from Port Blair.

However, the connectivity to the Little Andaman islands under South Andaman district and Nicobar group of Islands is solely through sea. Needless to mention that sea journey are essentially dependent on weather prevailing at the time of journey. In case of adverse weather condition, the sailings are often cancelled until a favourable weather arrives. Moreover, in the recent past cyclone viz. GAJA and PABUK stroke this UT in November 2018 and January 2019.

Although all the Tehsil headquarters are connected by air, movement of Polling Parties being massive, journey of Polling Personnel by air is almost impossible considering the time factor and the cost involved.

It may be appropriate to mention here that out of 406 polling stations, thirty eight (38) polling stations are located in isolated locations requiring multiple mode of transportation. Movement of polling parties at such locations is hugely influenced by the weather conditions.

C-6) Resource availability – manpower, logistics, IT related, etc

There are 406 Polling Stations for which 1784 Polling Personnel (1624 plus 10% reserved) are required. However, availability of sufficient manpower as per the guidelines of Commission is difficult due to non availability of manpower in distant and inaccessible areas for positing for election duties. Communication is a challenge considering need of surface, water and air transport as the distance and isolation of locations of Polling Stations is a huge challenge. Moreover, non-availability of communication facility in all locations including internet is a huge challenge to use IT related facilities.

C-7) Weather conditions

The weather per se is unpredictable. It rains for almost eight months in the year. It starts in May with the South-west monsoon. Later on, there is the north east –monsoons which lands with storms and cyclones making conditions more challenging (during the month of November and December, 2018 two cyclones hits this UT (i.e Gaja & Pabuk).) From January to April, there is little rain and the only dry months and suitable for election.

C-8) General Law and Order; history of the UT

The law & order situation has remained peaceful and normal in all the elections in the past. The Constituency as such has very few law and order incidences in last election and has no history of poll violence or booth capturing or other related offences.

However, due attention was paid to police deployment in the urban area (Port Blair Municipal and adjoining areas) in the UT as well as area such as Billground under Mayabunder Tehsil in Middle Andaman and Diglipur in North Andaman, which are traditionally very active politically which need constant supervision and monitoring.
